Irvine-based Epinex Diagnostics Inc., a privately owned medical device company committed to helping alleviate the current health care crisis through innovative point-of-care technologies, announced Tuesday it won a Frost & Sullivan Excellence in Research award.

Epinex developed the G1A Rapid Diabetes Monitoring Index Test, which was picked by the Frost & Sullivan, an internationally renowned market research and business growth consulting firm that has been on the global stage for more than 45 years.

The award recognizes research and development programs whose "disruptive research" has the power to revolutionize the marketplace and influence the creation and adoption of new technologies.
